

Islamic Bioethics & End-of-Life Healthcare Decisions

A Community Education Workshop

This workshop will help fill common knowledge gaps around end-of-life care, advance care planning, and hospice from an Islamic bioethical perspective. Participants will leave with a clearer understanding of how Islamic teachings interface with U.S. healthcare systems and practical tools for informed decision-making.

Saturday, January 24th

9:30 am - 1:00 pm

Program concludes before Dhuhr iqama

ISM Main Hall

4707 S. 13th Street

Milwaukee, WI 53221

Aasim I. Padela, MD, MSc,
FACEP
Professor of Emergency
Medicine, and the Medical Humanities
Medical College of Wisconsin

Ismail Quryshi, MD, FACP,
HMDC, FAAHPM, CMD
Hospice and Palliative
Medicine, Internal Medicine
Froedtert & The Medical College of Wisconsin

Renee Foutz, MD
Assistant Professor of Medicine and Emergency Medicine
Hospice and Palliative Medicine
Medical College of Wisconsin

Founder & President
Initiative on Islam and Medicine

REGISTER TODAY!
Seats are limited.

Have Questions?

Contact Dr. Laila Azam
at lsazam@mcw.edu

On death & dying

Terminal illness, dying & living wills are difficult topics to talk about, despite the reality of death.

Do you know..

American Muslims, in general, have limited knowledge and awareness about palliative & hospice care, as well as advance care planning.

What about Islam

There are misperceptions and perceived tensions between aspects of end-of-life care and Islamic teachings.

"Good death"

Ever thought of engaging with end-of-life care as a patient - or caregiver for a loved one - to face the final moment in peace & without regret?

INITIATIVE ON
ISLAM AND MEDICINE
INSTILLING HIKMAH IN HEALTHCARE

